Boat House Committee Active

Committee Asks for Support of Student Body in Thirty-Acre Project

The Boathouse committee consisting of Misses Marjorie Wells and Rosalind Mokray, William Mokray, and William Murphy, met during the past week and formulated plans for the much-desired improvement of the boathouse at Thirty Acres. The plans have been approved by President Edwards and will be presented to the Board of Managers at their meeting next Tuesday. Each fraternity has promised to give a small amount of money toward the cost of the improvements, and it is expected that the Board of Managers will vote the rest.

The present plans include the renovating of the second story into a ladies' bath house, the fitting up of the first story for canoes, a small men's dressing room and the construction of two diving boards. It is also planned to name an afternoon in the near future for students to volunteer their services to work at the boathouse. The committee hopes the students will take enough interest in the project to volunteer their services for carpentering, painting, etc.

Let's go, students. Make it possible to have neat and comfortable accommodations for boating and swimming within two weeks!

Varsity Debaters Lose to R. I. C. E.

Ryan and Wright Present the Best Arguments in Debate at Providence

On the 23rd of April, R. I. State's debating team, consisting of Thomas K. Wright, Charles F. Pray and Richard Conklin, went down to a unanimous defeat before the onslaught of powerful Rhode Island College of Education team, at their auditorium.

The State team, upholding the affirmative side of the question, "Resolved, That this house approves the foreign policy of the Coolidge administration in Nicaragua", had a difficult task, since public opinion invariably upholds the negative.

Richard E. Ryan, George H. Blackwell, and William R. Langhery of the winning team, presented their arguments in a convincing manner, stressing particularly, the points that, "Coolidge usurped the authority of Congress", "that the United States is interfering with Nicaraguan elections", and "that the Nicaraguan policy as not consistent with the Monroe Doctrine."

The high lights of the evening were the argument presented by Ryan of the winning team, and the final rebuttal of Mr. Wright.

Lellin J. Tuck of Pawtucket, Howard B. Gorham of the Sixth District Court, and George Hurley, former Assistant Attorney General were the judges.

Mass Meeting Held for Prexy

Students Give Vote of Confidence; Protest Against Journal Articles

A well attended mass meeting was held in Lippitt Hall on April 26, as a protest against articles which appeared in the Providence Bulletin and Journal. Maurice H. Conn was chairman.

In refutation of the newspaper statements, Conn said that Dr. Edwards is interested in the student body and their activities, that Mrs. Rawlings is very much qualified to teach dramatics, and that the reason the rear wall of the engineering building was made of brick was that additions could be built without the economic waste of tearing down an expensive stone wall. During his regime, President Edwards organized the Home Economics and Business Administration course, the Beacon, inter-

Varsity Swamps Connecticut By 112-23 Score

Talbot Breaks Broad Jump Record; Takes Three Firsts

Competing not only against the Connecticut Varsity, but also the elements the Rhode Island Varsity track team virtually swamped their opponents who only scored one first place in the entire meet, last Saturday.

Captain Bob Talbot, besides winning both the century and the 220-yard dash, broke his former record of 21.9 with a leap of 22.8 in the running broad jump.

Bruce had no trouble in winning the hammer with a throw of 146.8 his nearest competitors being Knowles and Anderson both R. I. men.

Other fine performers for the State were A. M. Johnson, Peterson, Intas, Hersey, Dring, A. Z. Smith, Munroe, Long, Partridge, and Droitcur.

The summaries:

One-mile run—Won by Dring (R. I.); second, Dittrich (C.); third, Johnston (R. I.). Time 5:03 4-5.

Rhody Suffers First Defeat of Season

Colby Hits Hard to Knock Draghetti From Box

Colby handed the Rhode Island State nine its first setback of the season here last Friday afternoon. The final score was 7 to 4.

Colby played "heads up" all the time and gave Ferguson excellent support. Ferguson, freshman prospect, allowed 10 hits but kept them well scattered. The heavy hitting of MacDonald, Klusich and Niziolek was responsible for Colby's victory. They garnered two doubles and a triple off Draghetti to push over no less than five runs.

Draghetti seemed off form, passing five men in six innings. These free trips, together with some loose handling of the ball by the Rhode Island team, were responsible for most of Colby's runs.

The score:

De Molay Club Holds Successful Spring Dance

Large Crowd Present; Providence Orchestra Scores Big Hit

Girlish laughter, the whirl of dancing feet, and the wail of saxes filled Lippitt Hall with gayety last Saturday evening when the De Molay Club held its first annual Spring Dance. The Providence De Molay Orchestra furnished dance music of a quality comparable to that supplied at most of our major dances, and also presented several very artistic, and amusing specialty numbers. During an intermission, the dancers were entertained by a fine appearing, well executed drill given by the Drill Patrol of the Pawtucket Chapter. The dance was characterized by guests from the Providence, Pawtucket, and Newport chapters, and by "imports" by both co-eds and eds.

The hall was gaily decorated in purple and gold, the De Molay colors and an exceptionally novel touch was added in the serving of refreshments, the feature of which was iced cupcakes having the letters D, and M, in gold, upon the toppings.

In view of the fact that this was the first dance given by the club, the attendance was very gratifying to the committee, and incidentally to the "stags".

The patrons and partonesses were Dr. and Mrs. Howard Edwards, and Dr. and Mrs. Harold W. Browning.

The committee in charge of the dance consisted of T. Kenneth Wright, of the Pawtucket Chapter; Nelson Tompkins of Tucson Chapter; Leonard Russell of Pawtucket Chapter; and Donald Bunce of the Providence Chapter.

Junior Week Program All Mapped Out

Prom Should Be Good; "Cap'n Applejack" Coming Along Fine

With Junior Week in the offing, all plans have been completed for the most enjoyable entertainment the ol' Mem' book has ever recorded. Chairman Wallace McLean of the Junior Prom committee has been granted all rights on a full moon (with trappings) for next Thursday evening and a most pleasantly sunny afternoon, assuring a jolly good time for all. He warns us that Lippitt will be incognito in the unique decorations his decorator has prepared. Also, that Dok Isenberg and his Symphonians, of Boston, shall supply the necessary accompaniment to dancing, in a manner which will prove very pleasing to our dancers.

A "sweet" table will be set in East Hall to refresh those who should become enthused over their dancing, to the extent that their love of sweets be aroused.

"Captain Applejack," to be presented by Phi Delta on Friday evening under the direction of Miss Peck is well nigh perfected, and should bring out rounds of applause from appreciative spectators. This play contains more than the usual number of thrills, dealing with thieves, pirates, etc.

Rev. Roy W. Magoun Addresses Assembly

Champlain From Newport Speaks on "Preparedness in Life"; Students Elect Lec. Association Officers

Another fine Assembly hour was enjoyed last week with Rev. Roy W. Magoun, Chaplain of the Seamen's Institute of Newport, as the speaker. Rev. Magoun opened the exercises with a reading from the Book of Proverbs and the Lord's Prayer. Then he entered on his main address with a tribute to Dr. Edwards for his efficient and able administration of the college.

The theme of the speech was "Preparedness in Life". He pointed out that preparedness was necessary for success and that there were several great virtues that should be practiced in life, namely, punctuality, keeping one's word, brevity, and clear direct speech.

"He who does not talk, knows, and he who talks does not know; we should polish up our speech as we do our finger nails; and when we are true to ourselves we cannot be false to anyone else"; were some of the most valuable excerpts of the address.

The New Staff

After the helmsman of a steamship finishes his four-hour stint, there is a period of several minutes during which the ship veers from its course and makes several swings of ten or fifteen degrees both sides of the correct course. But the quartermaster soon gets the feel of the ship, he learns how many spokes to put the wheel over to counteract whatever wind and sea may exist at that particular hour, and for another four hours the wake of the ship stretches out to the horizon in that straight line which delights the officers.

New hands are guiding the Beacon. There may be a period when mistakes will be made, though we of the new staff hope to avoid serious errors. But the Beacon will get back on the course.

Benny Fine and his crew have left us with a Beacon which is in excellent running shape. Many improvements have been made during their year of service. The six-page issue has been made the rule and not the exception.

The new staff will do their darndest to put out the best possible Beacon.

The Glee Club

The Glee Club has had a successful season, not only because of the excellent renditions, but also because the management arranged for a large number of concerts in and out of the State. The members should be complimented both for their good singing and for their gentlemanly behavior.

We might have these Glee Club artists broadcast the name of the college. Other college glee clubs tour different sections of the country. Such publicity does not cost much, and means a fortune.

It is not too early to suggest that the Glee Club arrange a series of six concerts to be given during the mid-year vacation next winter in some part of the country, preferably around New York City. With the reputation already well earned, the organization should not find it hard to arrange with civic organizations around the metropolis for appearances on consecutive nights. The guarantee should help defray the major portions of the expenses of such an undertaking.

Many veteran songsters will be in the club next year, and there seems to be no reason why the future manager can not arrange a tour. Criticism of the Glee Club because of the preponderance of religious and folk songs has been expressed, and it might be better to have programs of a more collegiate nature.

Sunday Concerts

Every Sunday night for ten or a dozen weeks this past winter the village church conducted short services which took the form of either a concert or a talk. The attendance at these was not very large, but those who did go did so regularly, and now regret that the series stopped. On the first Sunday evening after the completion of the series, several students went to the church, saw the edifice dark, and returned to their several abodes feeling that something was missing.

The reason of small attendance was the time of meeting, Sunday night. Students generally postpone preparation for Monday's classes until Sunday night. This is only natural. But it is not too difficult to get into the habit of spending an hour of Sunday morning in study, and for that reason we sincerely hope Rev. Beardslee will resume the series of concerts next year. The Beacon will do what it can to give advance publicity.

The concert which we enjoyed the best was the joint organ recital of Prof. Ralph E. Brown and Dean Helen E. Peck. These two musicians are always available and we hope they can be induced to give more musical evenings. The "King of Instruments" is very popular these days, thanks perhaps to the movie theatres, and the battered phonograph cabinets of the fraternity houses include many organ selections.

Henry Shorr and his phonograph gave several enjoyable programs. Henry is passionately fond of good music, and his explanatory talks which accompanied his presentations instilled in his audience an interest in and an appreciation of his excellent collection of records.

Another interesting (an editor feels like going berserk when he sees the word "interest," but it has few similes) evening resulted from Prof. Ralph Brown's lecture on the organ. He spoke of its theory, history, and development and illustrated his points with slides. He then ascended to the heights of the choir loft and gave a short concert the rendition of which required the use of every stop, dingus and gadget the organ had.

The church should be thanked for the work they did, and for which there was no financial return. We certainly hope the church runs another series next year.

College Men Should Prefer Co-eds

The following is an extract taken from the New York University Daily News, views of Heywood Broun, columnist of "The World" and "The Nation":

"I am strong for the co-ed," says Mr. Broun, "and heartily believe in Co-education. I think it's the best thing for the colleges. It seems to me that it is preferable for the college man to have his association with women in the college than outside the college. When there is no opportunity within the college, the men will go outside, and associate with women on a lower intellectual and social standing, like waitresses.

"Not that I have anything against waitresses, but they seem to be the favorites of the college men. I don't say that undergraduates are extraordinarily immoral, nor do I defend their immorality, in any way, but while they are immoral and have their sex experiences, it is better that they have them with first class women than with third class women.

"Co-education is no doubt the best solution to our problem," Broun continues. "I never went to a co-ed institution except in high school, but I can't see why it can't be done anywhere. The contacts are good for both the girl and the boy and it's a normal way for both to meet each other. There's hardly a better meeting ground, and it has an intellectual background. Relationship between the sexes is wholesome at a school, where men meet women of the same intellectual capacities and attainments. And then, when they get out into the business or professional worlds, they all go as equals.

"The monastic idea, of purely men's colleges, is all wrong; I can't see them at all. Contacts with women of their own standing are more healthful and helpful for youths. They can be more serious and discuss more important things with women. You can be frank with women and tell them things you'd never tell men—they understand more easily. You can form strong relationships with women, but men are inclined to be flippant and frivolous, and will not be serious.

"Between the ages of 18 and 22, it is advisable that men have as much contact with women as possible. They are at the age, and the hunger must be satisfied. At Harvard, on a Sunday afternoon, a few hundred girls would walk around Cambridge ready to be picked up. The men go out and associate with them. This hunger would be better satisfied if the institution were co-educational. The relationships would be finer and greater.

"No, of course college doesn't prepare one to be a husband and a father at all," he declares. "Everyone should know the elements of sex, and the reason why many marriages are so unsuccessful is that the man and woman are not sexually suited to each other, and haven't a better knowledge of sex relationships. No, I haven't read Lindsey's 'Compassionate Marriage'—I mean 'Companionate Marriage,' yet.

"Every youth should know about sex; if he is not taught it definitely in college, he must look for it somewhere else, in books. Those who find themselves up in the air on the matter, should find some of the best literature on the subject and read up on it. It is a legitimate curiosity which must be met.

What colleges for men need today most, Broun adds, is a good deal more women professors. If they are of a certain type they will prove stimulating.

"The professorships are now judged from the wrong basis—on scholarship. But a professor, especially in English, may be the greatest scholar, but if he is not interesting and doesn't put his stuff across, he is of little value to the student. The main criterion should be, I think, how much the student will get out of the professor.

"There should be more women teachers in men's colleges because women are more able to dramatize the subject than men, and most subjects must be dramatized to get the greatest reaction and create the greatest impression.

—CLARKE "NEWS."

The editors congratulate the women of the college upon the success of the Co-ed Beacon. The edition elicited favorable comments from everybody. Even the business manager, confronted with the cost of the two "cuts" used, was satisfied. It was a genuine co-ed issue, they wrote practically all of the articles and did most of the work of putting the paper together. Many of the girls can wield a facile pen and their contributions are always welcome.

E. E. SOCIETY

At the last regular meeting of the Civil Engineering Society, held in the large chemistry lecture room, Mr. Hogue, of Warren Brothers' Boston establishment, lectured on Warrenite-Bitolithic pavements. Many interesting points regarding the construction of pavements and roadways were brought out by the speaker in the course of his lecture.

The lecture was profusely illustrated with slides and motion pictures showing the actual construction work in process and also the manufacture of Warrenite at the Cambridge, Mass., plant of Warren Brothers. Samples of the bitolithic paving material were passed around in the audience for examination. In this way, the interested civil engineering students were able to see the actual material and study its characteristics in addition to seeing the more detailed projections on the screen.

M. E. MEETING

Last Wednesday afternoon the M. E. Society went to visit the Peace Dale Mills. Although the entire society was unable to make the trip, due to another activity on the campus, those who went had a very interesting and educational trip.

They were shown through the factory by one of the superintendents. All the students expressed surprise at the size of the mills, which exceeded all expectations. The main interest of the students was centered in the generator plant, where the power is developed.

HOME EC. CLUB

On Monday evening, April 23, the Home Economics Club held its regular meeting. After the formal opening of the meeting the entire time was given over to an old fashioned spelling match. Mrs. Lillian Peppard and Mrs. Milkie Hines were the Captains of their respective teams. The various ways in which some of the words were spelt afforded very much amusement. Emily Barber, '28, upheld Mrs. Peppard's team and won the prize by out-spelling the rest who had participated.

She—"Will you marry me?"

He—"Oh, this is so seldom."

Campus Club Has Banquet

The formal initiation and sixth annual banquet of the Rhode Island Campus Club was held last Saturday. The affair was by far the most successful one since the inception of the organization, judging from the attendance of the alumni.

John Callanan, '24, was toastmaster and introduced the following speakers: President Howard Edwards, Charles H. Wales, former instructor in engineering here, Assistant Professor C. Lester Coggins, and Percy N. Creaser. Lester P. Bloomer, president of the fraternity, gave the charge to the freshmen and Robert R. Staples answered in behalf of the new members.

The initiates in whose honor the banquet was given were: Robert R. Staples, Harold V. Barr, Morris Almfeldt, Ralph Bumpus, Winthrop Farnsworth, Arthur Catudal, and Robert Stewart.

The committee comprised Charles O. Teed, A. Dean Hunter, Andrew McCarville, and Thomas Powers.

Among the alumni present were: G. A. Eddy, Ray Little, W. V. McKechnie, Casimir C. Rogers, I. C. Romer, Charles H. Wales, F. H. Fitchener, D. B. Brown, A. Miller, K. Priestly, A. C. Mansolillo, H. Hopkins, E. K. Johnson, A. H. Leigh, J. Callanan, J. Coolidge, Ormand Gay, Walter Little and C. A. Buckminster.

C. E. SOCIETY

"Anthracite" and "Railroad Electrification", movies, were shown in Lippitt Hall last Friday morning to the Electrical Engineering Society. Four score attended.

"Anthracite", a General Electric film explained the operations of coal mining and emphasized the use of electric machinery. The other picture was a Westinghouse production. It opened with a historical review of transportation from the time man added wheels to his sled to the present age of electrified railway transportation. In the artistic prologue the spirit of electricity was enacted by a 250-pound man with a bunch of static emanating from his head. Electrified railroads in different parts of the country and in Brazil and Chile were shown.

MISS BRADFORD HERE

A very interesting and instructive demonstration was given on Thursday afternoon and Saturday morning for the members of the Sophomore Foods class by Miss Bradford, a representative of the Postum Cereal Company.

Miss Bradford prepared numerous fancy gelatin desserts and salads. Several of the village women, faculty members, and girls from other classes were guests at the demonstration. Everyone who was present will vouch for the success of her products.
